

Middle-Age Superbook #2 Book 2. Your True Nature-Natural Inspiration is all you Own

Suppose you have ten billion dollars. Suppose you're the King of the World. You wake up everyday like every other human being feeling average. There is unused energy inside of you. If your practical needs are met meaning you don't have to worry about paying for food or housing right now, then it doesn't matter if you live in a modest house or a mansion. The next step after this for happiness is to create it through what you do. What you own cannot give you sexual orgasms, life orgasms or love. You have to create all these things yourself through what you do.

Will you release that energy inside of you today or not? This is your life purpose by nature or God, whichever you choose to believe in. If you don't, you can't reach happiness or transcendence regardless of how much money you have or what your position is in the world. You'll never be happy by consuming material things or constantly being entertained because deep inside of you your Creator gave you a sense of inner accountability to rise to the noble standard of who you were born with the potential to be. The fattest, most aimless couch potato anywhere harbors that fantasy, those visions and ideas of who he or she could have been and could possibly still be if he or she has the guts, inspiration, power and energy to live that path to become that person in that vision. Everybody creates their lives one step at a time, day by day. Release the natural energy in your free spirit with love and passion for the process, one day at a time. That's all life is for enlightened, happy, fulfilled people. Capitalism says save, save, save, build, build, build all you can to ensure your financial security as you age to last you for life. Suppose you have enough money to last a lifetime. Then what? There's more to life than the cheap thrills pop culture entertainment and shopping malls offer. It's a spiritual-inspired need that has to be filled by noble people everyday. Noble champions of life strive to release the natural inspired-spiritual-sensual-loving energy inside of themselves everyday. Other people do crossword puzzles, eat too much food and do other aimless activities. Releasing this natural energy inside of yourself is the only way you can ever be truly happy in the highest, most glorious sense. You have to do it almost everyday. You cant bottle happiness and have it all the time automatically. You have to earn it everyday through what you do. You cant set up your life so you got a nice house, a nice spouse and kids and youre automatically happy forever. You have to reach that standard of accountability to your soul everyday to get that feeling like your life has worth, like youre doing what you were created to do that makes you feel really good to be in harmony with the free spirit God gave you. Suppose you were a billionaire. Now what. Do you buy some meaningless professional sports team so you can pretend to fill some of your existential loneliness when you sit in the owners booth surrounded by 15,000 fans of that team? Does that give you any deep, profound intimacy with your fellow man? Look for the intimacy in your free spirit with the God that created you. Try to please Him by doing something worthy with your life. A lot of rich guys play high-stakes poker. Whats that all about? Does it give you intimacy with other people? Does it fulfill some self-destructive, undeserving feeling within yourself? Why are so many people unfulfilled? Its because they have not discovered that regardless of whether youre poor or financially secure, happiness on a deep level depends on whether or not you release a good dose of that natural energy inside of you day by day. If I dont release this energy, I start to feel a sense of spiritual emptiness overtaking me. If Im ever in a nursing home with nothing to do but play cards because Im so frail, Ill tell God its time for me to l
