

The Importance of Incorporating New Technology into Your Business

Most technology firms, mine included, spend a great deal of time and energy showing clients the benefits of leveraging technology automation in improving their operations by using the latest tools. The problem is that most technology firms, especially start-ups or rapidly-growing small firms, don't follow their own advice! The key to avoiding the potential death-trap of becoming irrelevant before your time is to fully embrace the notion that technology isn't just the key to the product or service you're selling, it is equally crucial to the success of your company's business model. In this chapter, we'll follow through the typical challenges preventing technology adoption and discuss strategies for overcoming these challenges in making your business operate more efficiently and effectively.
