

Financial Advice for The Network Marketer

Network Marketing has always appealed to those individuals who have dreamed of growing their own business. Some of the immediate benefits individuals see are minimal investment, flexible hours and it assists individuals and couples on their journey to financial freedom. In the beginning when an individual or even a married couple joins a network marketing company, they are so excited about the opportunity; yet some don't count the cost ahead of time. They have made their minimal investment as well as purchasing product the first month. As they approach the second month (or so), they can't even afford to work the business because they don't have any money. They are no longer enthusiastic about the business and have become discouraged. Can this pattern be turned around? Dr. Taffy Wagner, a nationally recognized Personal Finances Educator provides the missing component to network marketing Advice about Money. Sure, a lot of people enter into network marketing because they want to be business owners. However, they have not been given the proper foundation when it comes to money. Financial Advice for The Network Marketer is the fifth book in the series, Financial Advice For. This book is for those who are new to network marketing or have been in network marketing for a while. As a person who was in network marketing many, many years ago, Dr. Wagner knows firsthand this is an area that was not discussed.
