

Clans. Supercharge Your Business

The web has made redundant much of what was done before to build business but it has also enabled a powerful revolution in the way we connect. We no longer need employment to do what we love. We can create an empire from our mobile devices from any where, at any time, starting at home. Words we use to describe success in business have softened; they include caring, building trust and creating relationships. We actively seek others to whom we can give away our most valuable intellectual property. Weve become content creators, and a new lexicon describes what we do: we pin, tweet, like, link, share, leverage, re-purpose, podcast, audio, and productise it. Given these insights, here are five facts that a business owner ignores at their peril.

FACT 1 ? Blogging positions you as an influencer in your industry to find, engage and serve your best customers. ?

FACT 2 ? A community that gets why you do what you do and loves it, is your most powerful sales force.?

FACT 3? Purposeful blogging and building an advocating community are inextricably linked.??

FACT 4? These are two of the most powerful and accessible means by which to supercharge your business and your life. ?

FACT 5? When your business purpose and your community are perfectly aligned, it uplifts lives. Sandy McDonald knows this is how we must now conduct business today and that the Web gives anyone with purpose and passion the power to find, build and energise magnetic clans. Engage them and theyll change the world. Clans is an essential resource for any business owner. It shows you how to harness the passion of people online to supercharge your business and your life, through her 7C Plan to Clan framework.

Clarity: identify your passion and discover your purpose

Curiosity: learn to love and employ online research

Coherence: plan to position yourself, your business or your niche

Control: shape, manage and improve your online space
Communication: discover your authentic voice and use it to inspire
Connect: engage, enrol and reward those with whom you connect
Collaboration: share the exhilaration of working with a clan for a common purpose.

This is in part the story of how Sandy McDonald started a clan. A clan that then built itself to more than 12,000 people dedicated to tackling the enormity of over 2.7 million children orphaned in Africa. The story takes us on an intriguing journey as this remarkable community proves her belief that the collective inspiration of your clans will impact on local and global issues of disease, poverty, inequity and peace.

Sandy McDonald is the Clan Maker. She coaches business owners through a strategic process to build an advocating community, both as a business building and life changing practice. She is the founder of The Clan Makers, WhyYouMustBlog.com and the founder of Australian charity, KasCare. After 22 years running a marketing communications company, she used passionate blogging to build an online community to help the children orphaned in of southern Africa as a result of HIV AIDS and poverty. Her three decades of marketing experience together with the knowledge gained from this experience forms the backbone of her book, Clans Supercharge Your Business. She is also a featured author on Blogging for Business, in the book Online Marketing 3.0, Its That Easy, by Ludwina Dautovich. Sandy believes there has never been a better time to build a clan, and that the intersect of head, heart and the web is a collective power to grow equity in a business while uplifting the lives of others. She is known for converting a complex online world into practical, but life-changing steps for business owners to supercharge their business and their lives.
